ROYAL ARCANUM'S RECORD.

3,100 Candidates Initiated Into the Order in Chicago.

An event unprecedented in the annals of fraternal societies occurred at a monster union meeting in the 1st Regiment armory in Chicago recently, when a class of 3.100 candidates were initiated into the order of the Royal Arcanum.

The occasion was the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the order in Illinois. Never beorder at one time.

By this remarkable acquisition the membership of the Royal Arcanum in IIlinois now numbers 27,000, thereby passing Massachusetts, the birthplace and official home of the order. The states of New York and Pennsylvania alone exceed Illinois in total membership.

Fully 10,000 Arcanumites were in attendance at the meeting to witness the

In the domestic calendar Easter week s commonly set aside for gayeties and 'frivols." Hard work precedes it and in the days to come there will be not only the "clearing up," but spring sewing, spring cleaning and the customary spring warfare against the wily moth and all his confreres. But for this one week let jollity, reign, old social debts be paid and new ones incurred.

The number of entertainments appropriate to the season are legion. If there is a new bahy in the house, an Easter caudle party is quite the most delightful thing out. This function follows the christening and takes the place of the old-fashioned christening celebration. Only the immediate friends are invited. Invitations are sent out on the mother's visiting card. "Caudle Party, Thursday Afternoon, April 7, 4 O'Clock," with a tiny name card of the new baby inclosed. The decorations for the auspicious occasion should be as delicate blue, and baby's own flowers, marguer tes, lilies of the valley, forget-me-nots, roses or carnations. The refreshments are simply delicate sandwiches. simply delicate sandwiches, cake, "caudle" and confections. The refreshment table is small, covered with a pretty lunch cloth, having as its central ornament the bowl of caudle, which is dipped out with a silver ladle and passed to all the guests in the little caudle cups which may be obtained in china, glass or silver. Candles of pink or with shades in harmony with the color scheme, small plates of cakes and sandwiches and dainty comportieres of glass or silver for the bonbons complete the table furnishings. This part of the entertainment should be in charge of some young matron, another one being deputed to see to the distribution of the souvenir to see to the distribution of the souvenir boxes, containing squares of the christening

The mother receives the guests informally, then the baby, in his best bib and tucker, is brought in on a pillow, to be duly introduced and made much of, although on no account kissed unless on the brow or the rose-leaf hands, for the twentieth cen-tury mother, with the family doctor to tury mother, with the family doctor to back her, allows no promiscouous kissing of her children. The cake served at these functions is usually angel cake, and punch of a medium brew is substituted for the genuine "caudle." The receiption is brief.

Old-fashioned Caudle Cup.—If one has a sentiment in favor of the real old caudle of Elizabethian days, the following recipe is declared valid, and eminently palatable. On the day preceding the party stir two large cupfuls of oatmeal into three quarts of boiling, salted water. Add one cupful of seeded raisins, two sliced lemons, a stick of cinnamon and a grated nutmeg. and boil for an hour. Strain and set away in a cold place over night. When nearly ready to serve, reheat, add a quart of hot milk, two well-beaten eggs, a pint of brandy, half a pint of Jamica rum, and a pint of mulled sherry. Four into the punch bowl and serve hot, with a spoonful of whipped cream, and a little grated lemon peel added to each cup.

"At Homes" for Babies .- For little ones up to three or four years of age "at homes"

-English fashion-are in order. Accompanied by mamma or nurse, the babies are taken to the home of the one who is receiving. After being duly announced, each child is presented with a toy, is taken to the dining room, where jam sandwiches, "animal" crackers and tiny cakes are served, and are then borne off without having had time to grow the least bit tired or "weepy." At a recent function of this sort, where some forty babies were represented, each of the girl babies was furhished with a doll, and each of the boys with a little fur monkey as souvenirs of Easter Doll Parties.-Parties where each little girl is invited to bring her favorite der, and decided the case accordingly.

The attendance at the hearing included ter, are popular and timely. At a recent affair of this kind, given under the direction of a kindergarten teacher, there were dolly songs and a dolly drill, dolly tableaux and dolly recitations, a baby coach parade to music, and lastly a photograph taken on the front porch, where the whole bevy of little mothers posed with their babies of bisque, china and wax gathered about them. When refreshments were served there was a special table for the dollies, beautifully set with doll dishes, tiny candles with colored shades, simple refreshments warranted not to disturb the most delicate digestion and a little name card with appropriate souvenirs at each

Wild Animal Party.-A much more hilarious function, so far as noise goes, is promsed for this week in one of the suburban towns near New York. Some twenty invitations are out for boys—each one requested to come as some "wild animal" he has known. Fortunately both house and grounds are large enough, so that the "lairs" need not conflict, nor the "calls of the wild" bring out the police. Masques representing nearly all animals can be obtained, but the costuming will require more or less ingenuity on the part of the individual home circles represented. During the afternoon one of the Thompson-Seton wild animal plays is to be given, and prizes will be presented to the most natural and the most ludicrous animal. Peanuts and popcorn will be "on tap" all the time-that the wild animals may help themselves—while the refreshment table later in the day will contain honey sandwiches to suit the hears; chicken sand-wiches for the foxes and coyotes, nut sandwiches for the monkeys and meat for the lions and tigers. The ices will be shaped in animal molds, and cakes and crackers will bear the same forms.

Easter Mother Goose Market.—Among the many Easter fairs projected for charity the "Mother Goose Market" is always sure of scoring success. At these fairs the children who preside over the different booths, which have Mother Goose mottoes written above hem, are dressed in appropriate character costumes. Among the booths which take well are the cake, under the charge of the Queen of Hearts; the candy, run by Handy Spandy, "who loves plum cake and sugar candy;" the tea table, under the conduct of "Poly," who perpetually "puts the kettle on," the doll booth, looked after by the "old woman who lived in a shoe;" the broom and dusters, by the old woman who essayed to sweep the cobwebs out of the sky; crackers and cheese, by the "old bachelor;" hot cross buns, by the pitty-patting "baker man;" the fish pond, by "Simple Simon;" ice cream, by "Little Miss Muffet;" sandwiches, fat or lean, by Jack Sprat and his wife; buit tonies by "Goldtlocks." Easter eggs. r tonics, by "Goldlocks;" Easter eggs, "Humpty Dumpty," and Easter flowers, by "Mary, Mary, quite contrary."

Lemonide is quite properly dispensed by "Jack and Jill."

Chinese Luncheon .-- For older people original luncheons are in favor—the more out of the ordinary the better. Now that so many Chinese sweets, nuts and fruits are in the markets, a Chinese luncheon is comparatively easy to execute. The room may be decorated in oriental style, with chrysanthemums, cherry blossoms and embroiderles. If the real flowers are out of question, every Japanese or Chinese curio store carries a supply of flowering branches, delightfully real and artistic. Paper napkins can be obtained anywhere, and the little porcelain Chinese spoons, as well as Chinese teacups, are plentiful, and not necessarily expensive. At a successful Chinese luncheon served recently small painted cups of sweets stood at the plates for souvenirs, and upon each cup stood a small rat of Japanese workmanship. For this week the tiny little chicks, imitation ment of the order in Illinois. Never be-fore, it is said, has such a large number | Japan, would be much more appropriate, of men been inducted into any fraternal | the latter especially being favored nowadays by women for use afterward as powder puffs. The menu might include Chinese chop suey (guy chop suey), with chicken cumquat salad; preserved ginger (town gong), preserved pineapple (poor law), lychee nuts (jone tome lychee), Chinese cakes (dimsam). Luncheon and Breakfast.—To the ques-tion so often asked, "What is the differ-ence between a luncheon and the fashionable breakfast?" the answer is this: A breakfast is always given as near 12 o'clock as possible, while a luncheon may come an hour or two later. While both these functions are considered, as a rule, to be purely feminine, Easter week, being holiday week, is an exception, and men are often invited. The menu in either case usually begins with fruit—grape fruit, choice strawberries served au naturel, or a Fruit Salpicon.-All fruit salpicons are prepared in exactly the same way, the only difference being in the combination of fruits. Sugar and water are boiled together until the syrup spins a thread; lem-on juice to cut it is added, then two or more kinds of fruit. Rum or sherry is commonly used in the flavoring, though many who object to anything alcoholic favor pineapple juice. After the fruit and juices are put together they should be stood away in a cold place for an hour or two to properly blend and mingle flavors. For making the proper combination of fruits and flavors, no hard and fast rules can be given, taste and skill being the es-sentials required. Raspberries and currants, two parts of the former to one of the latter, always blend delightfully; strawberries and orange juice go well to-gether; pineapple, orange and banana; badainty as possible—using pure white with a tinge of baby's own color, a soft pink or delicate blue and baby's own forms. tart apples; pear, apple or quince with lemon, while grape fruit is delicious combined with white grapes and maraschino.

To Start the Luncheon .- When grape fruit serves as the introduction to an elab-orate luncheon, it is usually cut in the shape of a basket, the pulp removed, every bit of the bitter membrane taken out, then the pulp returned to its basket, sprinkled with sugar, flavored with a dash of Santa Cruz rum, and decorated with one or two candied cherries. This course is always served ice cold—a necessity with all similar combinations of fruit.

MAMONG THE FRATERNITIES

The leading Pythians of Washington are greatly pleased with the decision of the District Commissioners in denying the protest made by certain property owners in the vicinity of the new Pythian temple against the use of any part of the new temple as a banquet or general assembly hall, which might be let to other parties. The decision of the Commissioners was unanimous, and the work of building the temple will be pushed briskly. The grand chancellor has arranged for the laying of the corner-stone of the new temple some time in the month of May, and the ceremony will be one of great interest to the fraternity in particular and the public in general. A distinguished United States senator will make the oration on the occasion of the laying of the corner-stone, and many prominent Pythians of Washington will participate in the event. Their active in-terest in the ceremony will be shared by the entire local membership of the order and by the large number of members of the Senate and House and department officials who are actively concerned in the progress and prosperity of the order. The District officials will be invited to participate, and it is expected the ceremony will be rendered notable in many ways.

The objection of the neighboring property owners was in no way addressed to the order of Knights of Pythias, as the protes-tants all stated to the Commissioners. It was made solely on the point that the main hall of the temple could be leased to other organizations, some of which might not prove as dependable as the Pythian fraternity. The Commissioners, however, ex-pressed entire confidence in the Pythian or-

VACCINATION FOR TUBERCULOSIS Trial of the Same Principle Which Gives Immunity From Smallpox. From the New York Herald.

It is safe to say that there is no subject in which the general public has a greater and more abiding interest than that bearing on the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. No malady is more prevalent and none more fatal in its ultimate tendencies. The dreadful taint of its hereditary influences has left its trace alike on rich and poor, and there is scarcely a family which has not lost one or more of its members by its direful and relentless ravages. Nothing that has any bearing on this absorbing topic escapes due attention, interest and study. The scientists work for new facts and the victims await results with constantly renewed hope. It is no wonder, then, that the novel view of the Italian expert Maragliano, that vaccination with tubercle bacilli may prove an effective rem-edy, will be calculated to renew the discussion of some of the vexed questions connected with one of the problems of the age. His theory is certainly a taking one, and its plausibility appears to be founded on the well-recognized principle of stimulating the natural vital resistance against disease in the exposed individual.

The law of protection against any infectious disease is based on nature's power to resist its poisonous influences. In strong and healthy persons the system manufac-tures its own antidotes against the various toxins that may find their way into the circulation. Thus persons are rendered immune against attack. In other words, the invading forces are outmatched by those for defense. Scientifically these repellant agencies have very high-sounding names, although the antitoxins, which belong to the group of so-called "anti" bodies, are familiar enough to the ordinary reader. These antagonistic properties are manufactured in the blood, mostly as new corpuscles, and are calculated to meet given emergencies of disease invasion. It is with the view of reinforcing such protective qualities that Maragliano advises his method of vaccination, and on the same principle of action as that which governs like immunity against smallpox.

His method is to prepare cultures of ba cilli of varying strength, and by inoculation to produce an overwhelming quantity of counteracting antitoxins in the blood of the patient. With a becoming enthusiasm he claims some very remarkable results by his procedure. It only remains now for other experimenters to verify his results in practice. This, according to report, has been done to some extent already, and it is to be sincerely hoped that his ingenious theory may be still further substantiated. At all events, it seems worthy of more extended trial in test cases, based, as it is, on the method of throwing off disease.

Although, regarding what he calls passive immunity in a person hereditarily predisposed to tuberculosis, it may be difficult to prove a negative proposition that we may prevent a thing that may never happen, the plausibility of the proposition will at least tend to allay unnecessary anxiety, especially as he claims to have actually produced such results in animals. So far as he has gone along these lines the results have been very promising, but the main issue rests upon the fact of positive cures after the malady has been fully developed. Whether the latter shall be ultimately attested or not, the new remedy can at best be considered not much more than an adjuvant to the other well-recognized means at hand. It may help nature in her work, but cannot be expected to supplant her. Fresh air, good nourishment, abundance of sunshine and the increased strength gained thereby are, after all, the main elements of disease resistance, and it is eminently proper that such should be the case, as, according to the general law of compensation those things that are of the greatest good to all should have no restriction in their dispensation. Thus, we can the more complacently await any new developments in the vaccination theory.

Took Advantage of His Opportunity. From the Duluth News Tribune. A good story is told of a domestic in an East End family who had been a long time in her situation, and who "gave notice" because she was going to be married. The girl who was engaged to take her place sent word to her mistress-to-be that she would not be able to begin her duties for at least a fortnight after the date on which her predecessor was to be married. The maid was asked by her mistress whether she would agree to postpone the date of the wedding, but she declined to do so, bearing in mind the old adage, "Change the date, change the fate." She said, however, that she didn't mind getting married and coming back for a time, until the other girl could assume her duties, and this was finally agreed upon, as the young man offered no objection. Half an hour after the cer-emony the girl was performing her cus-tomary duties, and her mistress said to her,

"And I suppose your husband has gone back to his work, too, Matilda."
"Oh, no, indeed, ma'am," replied the girl.
"He bane gone on his honeymoon."
